SURFACE AIR

"We have surface air inside-one atmosphere-and it stays exactly like this no matter how deep we go," said pilot, 31-year-old Dick Otter, an electronics engineer and U.S. Coast Guard scubadiver who first soloed in a submersible in Westinghouse's Deepstar research vehicle.

"The sensations are the same even at 3,500 feet," he continued, speaking from experience with Deepstar

The life-support system in-side is good for 24 hours but dives normally are limited to the eight-hour maximum battery operating time.

Otter, our pilot and one of only about 50 in all of North America, controlled the submersibles movements with three levers and various switches.

The demonstration dive lasted only about 20 minutes but it was long enough to get slightly bored—such was the complete sense of security and comfort—because the water was too murky for ready exploration.

Obviously the great fascination of the submersible lies in those viewing ports and meman can see unknown wonders stance helped discover two prefish—and perform difficult construction tasks.

Sinister Billion-Dollar International Black Market Alleged

WASHINGTON (AP) - A $1,000,000,000 international racket in illegal money is centred in the South Vietnamese capital of Saigon and has ties in banking circles throughout the world a United States Senate subcommittee was told today.

Robert R. Parker, a U.S. embassy staff member in Saigon. told the Senate investigations subcommittee the black market in money reaches more than

Radical Transport Eyed by Europeans

By DAN MORGAN

MUNICH (WP) - Cars will soon strangle Europe's cities but radical innovations in urban transport are still only glints in the eyes of the planners and politicians this side of the Atlantic.

This was the sombre conclusion of a symposium here of eminent men worried about the future. Twelve hundred of them from 12 countries are meeting this week at the "Systems 69" congress sponsored by the German Society of Future Problems.

Not even the official repre-sentative from Volkswagen, the company that put millions Germans on the roads in the first place, could rejoice.

Dr. Werner Holste said the outlook was for more cars— perhaps a growth of automobile ownership of 7 per cent a year for the next

He said the main hope for curbing an urban catastrophe may lie in new types of individual transportation, perhaps downtown mini-cars or taxis in which the passenger pickup and route to destination would be controlled by Both Dr. Holste and Dr. Heinz Busch, of the Messerschmidt-Boelkow Space and Aeronautics firm, agreed that another solution would be large taxis (or small buses) which would be driven by humans but routed to passengers by a central computer.

At the same time the two en outlined a dream world of rapid transit possibilities which they emphasized are mostly in the dream stage.

These included automated high performance cars, trains powered by electro-magnetism or riding on air cushions, a

He said that cars have destroyed cities but the time takes to get to work is longer than when people went on foot. He proposed setting up airports so that persons could step off planes directly into high speed trains to whisk them to their destinations.

Complementing this futuristic vision was a model for the international exhibit of planning and technology, which accompanies the congress. It showed a drive-on jet air-plane, and another freightcarrying transport plane whose sides could be removed for quick loading of container

For the first time, signs have appeared at this congress that urban transport problems are becoming a subject of political unrest here on an American scale

The change forseshadowed by a hefty 40 per cent drop in the cost of fuel oil used to power conventional electricity plants which some observers are convinced was motivated by oil com-panies' fears of losing an important market to nuclear energy.

But even without the lessened cost of fuel oil, the French system could not stand the cost competition from American nuclear reactors developed in the past five years.
Although the government has termed "one of the most momentous negotiations". Russia and an effort to reduce the global hazard of the bargaining should be clearly understand.

The objective, of the present talks at least, is not to abolish nuclear arms but, in the Soviet delegation's words, "to curb them". And the weapons under consideration may not at first include the vast destructive power of the intercontinental missiles ensconced in stationary land bases or on submarines. These armaments, estimated to be capable of wiping out humanity many times over, are too solidly built into the global balance of power to be easily altered even by mutual consent.

The target of the immediate negotiations is likely to be concerned mainly with the two new additions to the nuclear arsenal of both nations: the counter-missiles to destroy incoming ICBMs, and the multiplehead weapons designed to scatter their destruction over more than one target. Both nations are developing these weapons as they go to the conference table—there was even some argument during the recent ABM controversy in the United States that it was necessary to have this weapon in the locker in order to be able to bargain from a better position.

All things considered-and particularly the past history of meetings on similarly vital topics—the comment of one reporter that the talks "could last for months, even years," may be no exaggeration.

> But agreements respecting the nuclear deterrent-which, terrifying though it is, has worked for more than a decade-must ultimately involve considerations of conventional forces also, for in a non-nuclear world the power balance of the Soviet empire's vast permanent military manpower would be felt everywhere. And no move to limit armaments of any type can promise success unless the agreement is backed by the full confidence of each nation in its security.

The delegates at Helsinki have met in an initially encouraging atmosphere of toasts and high hopes. But the negotiations, difficult as they may prove in themselves, must be carried on always with a thought to the absent delegation—the uninvited spokesmen for China. Peking is not yet a nuclear power to be feared. But only time—and perhaps a surprisingly small amount of itlies between China and a nuclear strength to be reckoned with. Any agreements on arms limitation reached by the United States and the Soviet Union will have to contain small-print recognition, or between-the-lines appreciation, of the potential nuclear colossus in Asia.

It will be risky to wait until China attains nuclear equality or better before trying for a tri-partite pact. It could be fatal.

When Uninformation Is Bliss . . .

THE Trudeau government's plan to build a vast new apparatus of information, as an essential part of its program, may not have interested Canadians much but it electrified the ancient Empire of Megalomania, beyond the remote borders of Tibet. On hearing the news from Ottawa, the Emperor Hashish immediately decided to create an inform ation department of his own and thus solve all his political and economic problems at one stroke. As a first step, naturally, he set up a task force of recognized experts, headed by Marshall McLuhan, Senator Keith Davey, Dalton Camp, Pierre Berton and a hundred of the ablest information officials in the Canadian civil service.

When these specialists arrived at the Emperor's palace in his jet plane, Mr. McLuhan expounded the complex science of information in detail. The Emperor listened carefully, since he was grappling with an inflated national economy, a disordered budget, a capital gains tax, strikes in the major industries and riots in the streets.

'With a modern information system.' Mr. McLuhan said, "all Your Majesty's problems will disappear, as they have disappeared in Canada. With sufficient information, properly prepared and packaged, you can easily soften up, smooth down and tranquilize your discontented people. "Don't worry about that," Mr. McLuhan replied. "In Canada we have learned that such questions are minor, of low priority, compared to the supreme challenge of a technological age, which is to keep information flowing from the government to the voters. Yes, we have developed a sure grasp of the trivial. And once your people are likewise deluged with facts - discreetly sifted and processed, of course - they will forget their troubles as Canadians have forgotten theirs already.

This is a puzzling statement, in that the Department of Education asked a committee to prepare a new health education program for the elementary schools, including sections on basic sex education. The government-commissioned report has not been released to the schools and apnears to have been gathering dust since early this year.

Sex education at the elementary level is a controversial issue. Efforts to implement such programs in the United States, and more recently in Alberta, have met with strong opposition. "Legalized Theft"

Belgium has a Minister for Middle Class People in the cabinet. Perhaps Canada needs one, too,

The proposed 50 per cent tax will destroy small companies. There is reason and sense in the $35,000 allowed at the 20 per cent rate. Small companies must generate their own capital. They do not have access to the bond or stock market. Fifty per cent in the case of small companies is not taxation. It is confiscation, Large companies can treat all taxes as expenses and pass them on to the people. Small companies cannot.

Laws can prevent the $35,000 proviso from being used to evade taxes by a proliferation of small companies.

This 50 per cent tax on small companies will detroy incentive.

The proposed 50 per cent inheritance tax will add still more to the hundreds of companies sold to Americans (who have the cash) by Canadian heirs to satisfy the destructive inheritance tax. It is piling Ossus on Pelion.

When we finally have only the government and large companies compliant to government discipline, we will have effective socialism.

To take away 50 per cent of a man's property when he dies is not taxation, it is legalized theft justified by the theory the government will spend the money to better advantage than the man's heirs. I doubt if any heir, however stupid, would pay $300 to repair an office drawer or on an obsolete aircraft carrier on its way to the junk yard. If the government can err in this way, is it not conceivable it can err in other things?-M. P. Paine, 3620

Heating the Language on Bill 63

THE whole country knows by now that there is strong feeling in the streets about the provincial government's language legislation, Bill 63, But there is just as strong feeling right nasty. Take a trifling incident during Wednesday's session. The minister of education, Jean-Guy Cardinal, was answering a routine question about a school bus problem somewhere here on the floor of the national assembly, where the mood

is at times downright in the province Suddenly a member, Jean-Paul Lefebvre (Liberal-Ahuntsie) rose to ask the speaker if he could possibly supply a meeting room for the mini-opposition because its caucus was preventing him from hearing the minister.

"Mini-opposition" is the term that has sprung up here for the tiny band in the assembly that is fighting passage of Bill

It is tiny but immensely effective, using every conceivable trick in the assembly's 249-page book of rules, under the dazzling leadership of Parti Quebecois chieftain Rene Levesque

Its number had grown by an important 25 per cent-from four to five-a few minutes earlier with the long-predicted resignation of Antonio Flamand (Rouyn-Noranda) from the Union Nationale caucus.

When Mr. Lefebvre made his interruption, all five were clustered around the adjacent desk of one of the rebels, discussing strategy.

(Independent Liberal-Gouin), rose to support the idea.

Delaying Strategy

They would need the room for two weeks or months, he said-a dig at the government's effort to get the bill through in a matter of days.

Mr. Cardinal politely offered to sit down while the speaker made a decision.

Then Mr. Michaud blew up: "You would do better to resign, you... Follow your logic to the end. You have abandoned all ministerical responsibility."

The sudden, uncalled-for shouting ended as quickly as it began, with the call to order. (The miniopposition didn't get its caucus room.)

But that is how tempers flare like lightning here as the desperate opponents, convinced that the government and official opposition are in league to of the government's main schemes.

commit near-treason against Quebecsome would omit the "near"-strive to stop the hill

It recalled the repeated outbreaks of shouting the previous night as the then four-man mini-opposition held off the combined government and liberal forces for six hours before passage of a single article of the hill

The seated rebel, Yves Michaud "gagging" that rang out against Mr. The shouts of "hypocrisy" and Levesque and, Co. were nothing to Tourism Minister Gabriel Loubier's suggestion that one of his department's lakes would be a good place to drown Mr. Levesque.

The mini-opposition didn't take kindly to a ruling by Raynald Frechette, chairman of the committee of the whole house, that an amendment by Mr. Flamand could not be considered because it was contrary to the basic principles of the bill as a whole.

Basic to Foes

The amendment, which would force immigrants to send their children to French-language schools, is considered basic by the bill's foes-and its absence just as basic by the bill's supporters.

Mr. Levesque shouted that the chairman had made himself the executor

He, with heavy assistance from Mr. Michaud, continued well after the article was adopted without the amendment to berate the government and shout rule numbers in an attempt to get back in the

It took two hours before the vast majority of members could wiggle clear of the Levesque-Michaud tactics and get home for what was left of the night.

But Mr. Levesque was back at the rules game Wednesday the moment questions were over and the assembly was back in committee.

Rapping Cardinal

During the process, he accused Mr. Cardinal of letting it be known through cleverly worded press interviews that he himself was not responsible for Bill 63.

(Mr. Cardinal, generally considered one of the more nationalist members of the cabinet, has supported the bill as education minister).

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand accused Mr. Levesque of looking for a spook and finding it. He said he thought Mr. Levesque was a man of wider range than that. Mr. Levesque said fine, he would reduce his range to that of the minister of education, who toes the party line and protects his career in the assembly while also protecting his flanks outside it.

The Incoherence That is France

It is incidents of this kind, even more than the rash of strikes, major and minor. official and wildcat, breaking out all over the country which are indicative of what has been variously described as the ''malaise,'' the ''skepticism." the "moroseness." and the "disenchantment" afflicting France today.

Individuals driven to direct action, revolt by the normally law-abiding organizations which have lost faith in their official representatives these are the classic signs of a discordant society, incoherent and lacking in direction.

For evidence of the skepticism, one need look no further than the result of the public opinion polls, which show the majority of the French glumly convinced that prices will rise, that during the coming years they will spend rather than less as begged by the president of the and that labor troubles are inevitable.

The incoherence begins at the top. Only opposition politicians far gone in wishful thinking could imagine that the immense UDR (Union des Democrates Pour la Republique) majority is likely to fly apart in the foresceable future, but it remains an ungainly and unwieldly

Beating of Breasts

One of its elements is a group of irreducible, hard-line Gaullists, who, metaphorically, start every day by turning eastward in the direc-Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises, beating their breasts and asking themselves and the world: "What would the General do?"

Why do we speak of him as if he was already dead, when he is very much alive. and policially alive?" cried one of them, David Rousset, at a recent party meeting. Beyond them, there is a much larger number of middling conservatives who are far more approving of the continuity which represents one half of Pompidou's creed than of the opening which represents the other, and, it might be thought, more hope-

Many conservatives basically disapprove of the educational reforms of the then minister of education, Edgar Faure, and swallowed them only because, at the time there no alternative and because Faure was known to be backed by de Gaulle.

They would be delighted to see so bold and hopeful venture as the experimental University of Vincennes de-stroy itself, and they will make the utmost capital out of happenings like the incident at the Censier Annexe of the Sorbonne recently when a UDR deputy, having first told the ministry of education of his intentions, tried to force through student pickets behind the talisman of a deputy's tricolor scarf.

The present minister education, Oliver Guichard, is not to be accounted among their number, but he has the unenviable task of putting into effect a plan conceived in broad sweeps rather than essential detail, with too little money to do the job.

Chaban-Delmas himself, vintage Gaullist by virtue of his resistance past, did not have to face specific opposition of this kind when he became prime minister, but, because for 10 years he had been president of the National Assembly, and so avowedly neutral, he did suffer from the lack of ready-made party backing.

Totally Different

It is interesting that criticisms heard today of Chaban-Demlas —that he had not really got the troops in hand, that he does not command the total allegiance of the party precisely those heard about Maurice Couve de Murduring his relatively brief premiership, though two different men never lived.

In fact, the prime minister. a man who combines a quick, nervous intelligence with inexhaustible energy, and who has what some see as the considerable advantage of not being a product of either the Normale, the Polytechnique, or the National College of Administration, has already taken initiatives, both in the direction of liberalizing the national radio and television service and, even more remarkably, in engaging discussions of considerable depth and delicacy with the unions, which, even if they do not come off, would rank as most honorable failures.

But, with Pompidou, the prime minister has the task of reforming the national economy without even by implication condemning the administration of the 10 preceding years. For the president, the situation is obviously far worse than for the prime

Vows of Amity

One resort, obviously, is the continuation of Gaullist foreign policy, though possibly with more emphasis on its European aspect. While France and the U.S.S.R. are exchanging vows of eternal amity, the hard core in the majority will be mollified and the electorate may have some sense of continuity.

This may even be partly responsible for the recent nonsense in Quebec when Jean Lipkowski, secretary of state for foreign affairs, admittedly known among his colleagues as "un nerveux," refused to visit Ottawa in a fashion which the General himself could scarcely have

But beyond all this there are the solid realities of the economic situation, of a franc which may yet be taiked further down in the world's money markets, and of a budget which has slashed capital investments.

It was Jean-Jacques Servan Schreiber, hardly a revolutionary, who recently pointed out that cuts of this kind militate against the quality of sacrifice

Who Is Victim?

"If the hospitals are lamentable, who is the victim?" He wrote recently in l'Express 'Not those who can pay the fees for a private clinic. If the ools are dilapidated who suffers the consequences Not those who can send their children to private schools."

The more politically conscious of the victims are not unaware of these facts. Apart from the prospect of economic stringency, if not hardship, are living also in climate of change so rapid, so all-pervasive, that for many there seems not one stable element to which they can cling.

Not only are their tiny farms, their small shops, or their one-man work benches doomed. The curriculum of primary school changing. Under-graduate schools seem in a state of continuous flux. The university is turned upside down.

The catechism which the children learn on Thursdays has been revised so as to be unrecognizable to their elders Their Latin mass has for the most part disappeared, and quite possibly, their church music will be led by a group of youngsters playing guitars. There is sliced bread on shelves of the "self," and their own children question their decisions and answer back.

One reaction to the bewilderment caused by all this and to the threat it presents is a hostility which is generalized because while the left is in its existing state of demoralization and disunity, there is no serious political opposition which can serve as a focus for

The true opposition is what it is customary to call "The Man' in the Metro," the French equivalent of the man in the street. The man in the Metro seldom talks, if only because during rush hours his elbows are jammed so close to his ribs that he car arcely draw enough breath to vocalize. The man in the bar and in the neighborhood bistro, on the market stall and in the driving seat of the taxi, and humping ladders and bags of tools along the side streets is talking a good deal these days.

"France is ungovernable," some say. "What we want is a Hitler to put the screws on a

Even Pentagon Critics Come Under Its Power

By WILLIAM L. SHIRER

(Author of "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich" and the recently published "The Collapse of The Third Republic-An Inquiry into the fall of France in 1940.")

The government of the French Third Republic in the last decade of its shaky existence, like that of the U.S. in these years of massive arming and military involvement in Southeast Asia, faced an age-old problem of democracies. Who determines military policy - the generals or the elected civiliar government?

Theoretically, in both countries the question should not arise. Tradition and the constitution dictate that the ruling politicians and not the generals have the last word. But in practice it is sometimes otherwise.

In June, 1940, with the Third Republic in peril from the impact of the lightning German advance through France, it was the generals, led by Marshal Petain and generals, led by Marshal Petain and Generalissimo Weygand, who defied the civillan government of Premier Paul Reynaud and insisted on asking for an armistice It was they who took over the democratic Republic and replaced it with the shabby, authoritarian regime of Vichy.

Happily, we do not face such a prospect in the U.S. But we do face the fact that never before in our history have the generals (and their allies in the defense industries) possessed such power in the nation. It worried even the genial Ike, after long experience as a general and a president, and

The military have played an increasingly dominant role in getting us bogged down in a disastrous and meaningless war in Vietnam and in putting over the staggering increase in defense expenditures from $12 billion in 1948 to $80 billion this year — an increase of nearly 700 per cent — while our cities have rotted and the needs of the poor and the young and the old and the black have been neglected for lack of funds.

This is not just the view of an ordinary citizen. Gen. David N. Shoup, former commandant of the Marine Corps, found the military brass "dominant in government."
As a result, he feels, "America has come a militaristic and aggressive nation.' seeking military solutions of essentially political problems abroad — a revealing utterance from a combat American general, the hero of the battle of Tarawa.

It raises the old question of who is in charge of the store in a republic. And one is not comforted by the revelation of Congressman Jonathan B. Bingham in the current issue of Foreign Affairs that pressures from within the Pentagon for increased expenditures are still enormous and that civilians in government who are supposed to see to it that the military's "appetite is restrained are not capable of performing that function,"

If not they, who then is capable?

Recently the president appointed a blueribbon panel to serve as a watchdog over the Pentagon. But, according to Sen. William roxmire, eight of its members have interests of more than a billion dollars in defence related industries.

"A sham," he calls it, "and an indication that the Pentagon has become so powerful that it is able to control those who would criticize it."

So powerful as to control the government itself? And disregard the Congress, as Sen. J. W. Fulbright charges in relation not only to Vietnam but to Laos, where, he asserts on the basis of the current closed hearings, the United States is engaged in a clandestine war without the knowledge or authority of

The French of the Third Republic grappled with these problems and we have testimony about the difficulties. It reveals, for one thing, that successive heads government were simply too timid to keep a close watch on how the high command was spending its money.

When an obstreperous lieutenant-colonel named Charles de Gaulle once reproached Leon Blum for this, the Premier, a bit nettled, replied that after all military spending was the vectors with the colon blum of th spending was the responsibility of the army.
"No doubt." de Gaulle replied. "But 'No doubt,'' de Gaulle replied. national defence is the responsibility of the government.

The postwar French parliamentary investigating committee, after five years of hearings and weighing testimony, criticized the tendency of parliament and government "to relegate preparation of national defence solely to the military." It concluded: "There are very important aspects of war which escape, and will also escape the soldier...a government must never shelter behind the nilitary, but, on the contrary, imprint on it the essential impulsions."

Was that not what Sen. Eugene J.

McCarthy had in mind when he said last year to the puzzlement of many—"if elected, I shall go the Pentagon."

Right to Know Guaranteed-Almost

OTTAWA - One of th most provocative ideas to percolate in the private sessions of the Task Force on Information was the proposal to establish an ombudsman to safeguard public access facts the government might prefer to keep private.

As originally discussed, the official would have been dignified with the title of Information Commissioner and given something of the same independent relationship to rnment as that enjoyed by the auditor-general. Regrettably, this idea was process of discussion, decision and revision leading to the report of the task The central feature of the report is the plan to set up a new agency, Information Canada to co-ordinate existing information services, advise on their improvement and develop news services.

What remains of the ombudsman -plan is the sentence in the report: "One of Information Canada's responsibilities would be to act as a public advocate in matters of information, to help protect and make practical the right of public access to timely government in-

By ANTHONY WESTELL

In other words, there would no independent commissioner, but only a responsibility tacked on to a federal agency whose major responsi would be in other directions.

Canada, would be directed by a civil servant at the level of deputy minister or senior assistant deputy. He would presumably delegate the ombudsman function to an official junior to him.

The situation would be therefore, that a middle or iunior level civil servant would be expected to do battle with his seniors in other departments in the interest of the public's right to know improperly denied he would have to persuade or bully his superiors into changing their minds. It is true that Information Canada would have access each year to a parliamentary committee and could make an unfavorable report on a department concealing facts. But anyone familiar with the public service, and with the old-boy network linking deputy cannot have much faith in the idea of one agency reporting on the shortcomings of another agency.

The failure of the task force to recommend an effective solution does not invalidate its analysis of the problem: "The assumption behind most government activity is that, until an official designates information as generally available, it must remain classified. The people, and particularly the press, must sometimes make extra-ordinary efforts to get government information and, when they do get it, it may arrive through obscure processes of pre-selection.

The atmosphere these difficulties creates damages the very credibility of the in-formation. Moreover, the infomation may be incomplete, or too late to inspire constructive response, too late to give the people any sense of their own involvement in the processes of government Insistence on the public's right to know is one of the report of the task force. It is the other side of the proposition that the government must do a much better job of telling the public thinks they should know.

Predictably, the recommendation to establish In-formation Canada has been greeted with suspicion that it vould be nothing but a giant propaganda machine. vithin the civil service, there is fear of what politicians might eventually do with an efficient information service created with the intentions.

The alternative, however, is an inefficient service, which makes no sense, or no information service, which can hardly be a serious proposi tion at a time when the main threat to democracy seems to

"Well, that should be obvious. If we published our timetable, the public would expect our trains to observe Customers would be mighty cross if they came down here to catch a train at a specific time and we didn't have a train for them to catch."

"If you really have a timetable, why shouldn't you have a train ready when the timetable calls for it to go?" * * *

"Lots of reasons," said the ticket salesman. "We might have labor trouble with the ngineers. Maybe they're trying to hold us up for more money than we can pay. If we published our timetable, the engineers could wait us out until departure time and put pressure on us to settle higher than we wanted to because they'd know that if the trains didn't go at the fixed time the railroad would lose a lot of money, not to mention face."

"But you won't let anybody see it because you don't want the engineers to know what time the trains leave."

"Exactly. Of course, there are other reasons, too.'

"I've no doubt of that, but the fact is that we're rather in a hurry to get a train to Miami. Could you divulge enough information about your secret timetable to let us know if there is likely to be a train soon?"

'That all depends," said the ticket salesman.

"How can it all depend if you've really got a time-table?"

"You're nosy, aren't you Mister?" the ticket salesman observed. He was becoming a bit testy. "Don't you believe in this railroad the way the great silent majority of ticket buyers do?"

"I bow to no one in the intensity of my iron-horseism I simply ask, in all respectfullness, whether the secret timetable makes it likely that I can get a train to Miami anytime this month."

"If you really support the iron horse," the ticket sales-man asked, "why don't you give it your support?' "I'll do anything that will

You Are the Reason For Disenchanted Youth'

Most of them had grey hair and lined faces, and they listened with a troubled

In the ness of uphostered empti-a University of Victoria lecture theatre, about 100 of them were being told the world is teetering on the edge of disaster, with maybe only 10 years left before the ecological point of no return.

They were told it was their fault—that they were the reason for disenchanted youth, the generation gap and the campus revolution.

And they were being told in their own terms and their own-language by one of their own generation. Frederick Edell, a Uvic teacher in theatre, was lectur-ing to the University Extension Association Monday night to culminate a four-lecture series on different aspects of the university.

"I'm supposed to talk about university ferment," he said.
"But that sounds like a fancy way of making beer. Let's call it the student revolution. Because if there are any forces for change in the university I think they lie with the students. "What's wrong with the schools," said Edell, "is that no one is asking the real experts-those with a stake in the educational system. "A student should be giving this talk. A teacher has been asked to talk about what students are thinking." He said student unrest is merely a symptom that youth is rejecting the educational, moral and social values that have put the world on the and biological disaster. And implicit in that rejection is a rejection of the previous generation that still espouses those values. "The maturity of adulthood is a myth we hand to the -because it was handed down to us.

"It was once valid, but no longer. In the knowledge explosion, unless a man spends his whole life in a fight to remain flexible, by the longer wise: he's obsolete."

He said a great many students are beginning to understand this myth, and it disturbs them greatly for it means there is no longer anyone who knows better than they how to cope with the problems of the world.

"Unless we start cleaning up the environment immediately our days are numbered." he said.

"Meanwhile, Utah Mining asks permission to drop nine million tons of poisonous effluent per day into our water. Companies start drill-ing for oil in the Strait of Georgia, in the interior of B.C. there is strip-mining.

'Can you blame our militant young for rebelling against our world and demanding that universities take a role in changing it?"

He warned that an "even more militant generation" is graduating from high schools even now, and quoted worldfamous anthropologist Margaret Mead of Columbia University to explain why the campus upheavals will con-

"I think they are frightened as no generation has been frightened before—always in the most moral generations to come along in a long, long time. Because they are trying to make things nice." He said adults tend to repress where intelligent understanding is required.

"Student unrest, if har-nessed correctly, could end up in improving schools," Edell

"Prediction: It's not going to get better, it's going to get worse—if you consider student revolution and the reform of universities worse.'

At Monday's board meeting, finance committee chairman Cecil Wyatt said the matter had been discussed, and he recommended no action be taken.

NEW YORK (AP) - Less than an ounce of moon rock went on display at the Emerican Museum of Natural History, and 42,195 people showed up to see it. Museum officials said the Sunday turnout was the largest one-day crowd in history.

Battling a property-owning class that holds the reins of municipal and provincial governments is the tough job facing Victoria tenants if they expect to get rights.

That's the message brought to them Monday night by Harry Rankin and Bruce secretary-treasurer of the Vancouver Tenant Council:

They told of their 11/2-year struggle to make the first step—formation of a rent tribunal—at a meeting of 40 members of the newly-formed tenants' association in this

Rankin said society is changing from one which places property rights first to one that gives civil rights priority. But, he said, "while all these fantastic social changes have been taking place, we still have antiquated legislation that gives no rights to tenants."

In his lifetime, he said, Vancouver has changed from a community where most people owned their own houses to one where 50 per cent of the people pay rent.

He predicted that by the turn of the century, the number of people renting will be the same as the number who owned own houses 50 years ago.

Tenants 'Face Tough Job Battling Own The act which governs the landlord and tenant relationship is 200 years old and gives all the rights to the landlord. As a lawyer, Rankin sees traffic statutes changing by the week. But the landlord and tenant act has never been changed. You can get along well enough without a car, but you can't do without shelter, he said. A demand for a reformed act is not "far-out" or "radical"; it's a matter of common Yorke said the Vancouver association will call tenants from all parts of the province to attend a meeting in their city Dec. 6 to discuss formation of a provincial association and to push for a new landlord and tenant act.

Their proposed reform would limit rent increases on one per year, necessitate a three-month notice of increase, and justification for an increase)

It would also stipulate that a landlord could evict a tenant only if he is causing excessive wear and tear to the premises, or being an extreme nuisance to the neighbors, is two months in arrears in rent, or if the landlord needs the house or apartment for himself or his family.

Yorke said the arbitrary right of a landlord to evict his tenant is undemocratic and must be abolished.

Rankin said the Distress Act, by which a landlord can take a tenant's furniture and sell it for back rent and which permits him to lock the tenant out, must also be abolished.

Leases that restrict every aspect of a tenant's life must Damage deposits (often taken with no intention of ever returning them) must be limited.

Health and construction standards and rent controls must be established and enforced "Every scurvy trick that has even been perpetrated has been perpetrated on tenants," Rankin said.

The first step in getting rental grievance boards is to soften muncipal council, said Rankin. That was the job he did as an alderman in Vancouver, When legislation was finally "believe me, they did it reluctantly."

Second step is to organize tenants so the appeal board is used. That was Yorke's job in Vancouver. He said organization is hard for some people, but they must realize that in face of governments individual action can accomplish

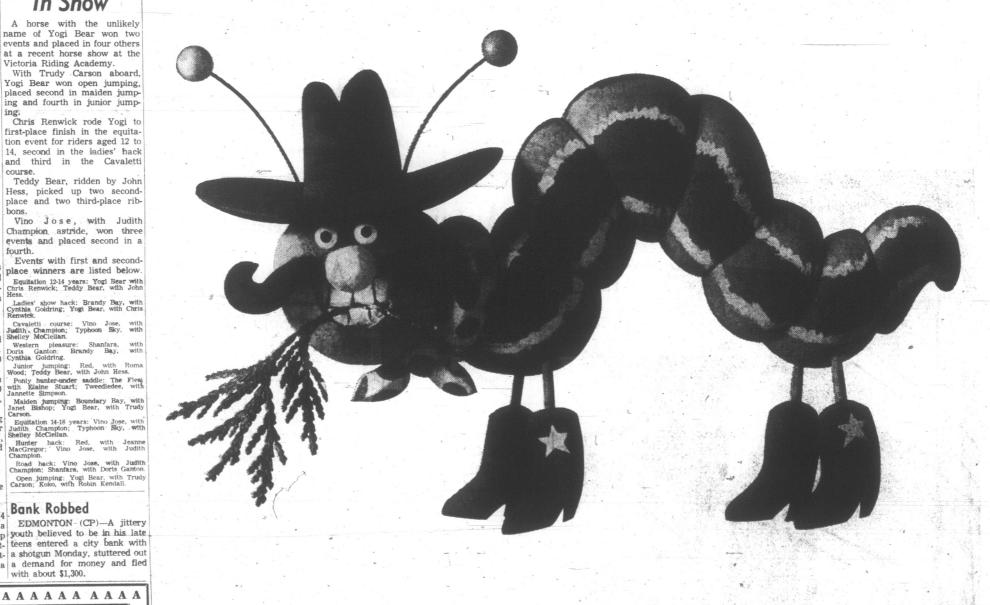

Not every Western villain is called Black Bart or Billy the Kid. Meet Melanolophia imitata, the green-striped forest looper, a current nominee for Pest of the West.

This leaf-chewing larva can eat his way through nearly 300 conifer leaves in his six weeks of life as a caterpillar. This voracious appetite makes him one of the most destructive members of a deadly gang of insects that threatens Canada's forest resources: beetles, weevils, miners, budworms, aphids. These, together with a whole scourge of diseases, destroy over one billion cubic feet of merchantable timber every year. That's enough to build 1,500,000 homes.

Unchecked, these predators would take an even bigger bite from the pocket and purse of every Canadian. But we protect the forests we manage—against insects, against disease, against fire. Our own intensive forestry practices. and the co-operative projects we share with government forest services, are part of our continuing programme to build healthier and more productive forests. And that means more jobs, more payroll, more export income for Canada.

Pest of the West.

Saanich Protests Closing Of Vanalman at Freeway

Saanich council will send a full delegation to press Highways Minis-Wesley Black for a crossing" at the intersection of Vanalman Avenue and Patricia Bay Highway.

The decision was taken after municipal planner Tom Loney told council Monday night that the highways department has said there will be no connection between Vanalman and the highway, which is being replaced by a freeway.

Vanalman will then end at the freeway, which is to be constructed to the west of the present highway, turning the existing highway into a frontage road.

Loney said future residential and commercial traffic will be significant and without access it will have to funnel south on Glanford Avenue and to a lesser extent on Carey Road.

"This type of traffic belongs on a frontage road and the municipality should not have to accept it on its street system," he said.

"All taxpayers will have to pay for the necessary road improvements which will be costly and residents of the area will have to pay additionally in terms of noise, inconvenience and safety," he said.

Under the highways department plans, he said, any traffic generating in the Vanalman-Glanford area could only reach the freeway by going north to the new interchange south Beaver Lake or by travelling south to the interchange at Mc-

Loney said the decision was based entirely on the additional costs, which are "extremely small in relation to the eventual cost to the citizens of this municipality which cannot be measured in terms of dollars alone.

"To say that this decision is unfortunate is to understate the case. To say that it stems from a complete inability or reluctance to understand what is meant by comprehensive freeway planning would be more accurate," he said. Council was informed that politiwould be more

The measure requires 60 per cent greater approval by residents before council can proceed with final reading of the necessary bylaw. It was given first three readings Mon-

Duplex Hearing Monday

The six-month-old duplex dispute in Saanich should come to a head at a public

On both the third and final readings of the bylaw, it will be necessary for two-thirds of council—six out of nine members—to vote for the change.

Previous voting patterns, although sometimes blurred by changes of mind, indicate at least six council members favor the proposal.

To overcome a legal nonconforming status for existing duplexes, if the proposal is accepted, the planning department has been cataloguing them so they can receive new zoning.

This will be the second hearing on duplexes, has aroused some which emotions particularly among the owners of single family houses

BRIDGE GAP

Executive director Reuben Baetz explained that the council is attempting to persuade measures to bridge the widening gap between the poor and those on the gravy train'

"Now, at the best of times, the gap between the 80 per cent who have it made and the 20 per cent who couldn't make it, is increasing at a more rapid pace," he said.

Baetz said a guaranteed an-ul income, if high enough, would be enough to bridge the "The guaranteed annual in

"But to introduce it you would have to do away with the old handout philosophy." Baetz said a guaranteed annual income is based on the belief that individuals have

N. Viets 'Chained' To Trees

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces today claimed 273 North Vietnamese killed in two battles in the Bu Prang-Duc Lap area of the central highlands. A government spokesman said U.S. artillery and planes did most of the killing.

The heaviest fighting was two miles east of Bu Prang, where 243 North Vietnamese were reported killed. Informants said South Vietnamese casualties in day-long battle were only 11 wounded because each time the governmen troops met stiff resistance, they pulled back and called on Amer ican aircraft and artillery.

The government claim of 234 forth Vietnamese killed was somewhat suspect. A search after the battle turned up only six weapons. Aerial observer counted some of the dead.

In the other battle five miles south of Duc Lap, 30 North Vietnamese were killed while South Vietnamese casualties were seven killed and 11 wounded.

'Altering' Viruses In 10 Years

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) Viruses capable of altering the evolution of mankind-for or evil-could be synthesized in .10 or 15 years if this were made a major national goal, says a noted scientist.

Dr. Robert L. Sinsheimer chairman of the division of biolgy at the California Institute Technology, told a seminar of science writers Monday:

"I would have to deplore the recently announced plan of the department of defence to synthesize a virus against which there is no known defence." But, "if we don't explore the possibility of creating synthetic viruses and some other national does we won't know enough to combat what they create." He said in an interview: "We are close to being able to synthesize viruses which could alter the evolution of even complex organisms such as men. If these were to become a major national effort, such as the moon program, I believe it could be accomplished in 10 to 15 years."

A synthetic virus could direct a stalk of corn to grow larger ears, or carry the chemical blueprint for larger and smarter brains in humans, he said.

The same technology conceivably could create viruses capable of deforming the body or the

"I am confident that with enough research, we can develop agents which will counteract any viruses, even synthetic viruses," Sinsheimer said.

Comeback Hopes bendschan's Toe Big Threat to Place-kicking could be a major factor in the second game of the Western Football Conference playoff Wednesday night with Calgary Stampeders hoping for a reversal of their 1967 series against Saskatchewan Roughriders. Calgary 'trails the best-of-three final 1-0 after losing 17-11 Saskatchewan Saturday in Regina and will be counting on veteran place-kicker Larry Robinson who finished third in the points

The Roughriders will be seeking their ninth win in a row when the teams clash in the MST contest at Mc-Mahon Stadium, to be televised nationally by the CBC with a blackout at Calgary.

Jack Abendschan's pinpoint kicking, which accounted for 116 points and the WFC scoring title, could spoil Calgary's comeback hopes and enable Saskatchewan to become the sixth team to sweep the best-ofthree final since 1950.

vanced to the Grey Cup last year with a sweep of the Roughriders, remember the bitter aftertaste of 1967 when they defeated Saskatchewan 15-11 in the first game of the final. Saskatchewan eliminated Calgary with 11-9 and 17-13 triumphs in the succeeding encounters. In 1965, Calgary also won the first game before dropping the two to Winnipeg Blue Bombers gary won on both occasions. Calgary has defeated Saskatchewan in two of three semi-final series.

Eagle Keys, coach of the Roughriders, gave full marks to Calgary after Saturday's game: "I knew they would be tough We made a lot of mistakes Maybe it was the long layoff, I really don't know.'

It was the fourth consecutive win for the Roughriders against the Stampeders. They met three times during the regular season and Saskatchewan won 24-8, 31-12 and 24-18.

Abendschan, 26, who booted three field goals, a convert and a single in Saturday's game, has been a stone in Calgary's shoe all year. In the three league games, he succeeded on nine converts and five field goal attempts. During the season, Abendschan was successful on 21 of 42 field goal attempts and made 42 of 45 converts. Robinson kicked 18 of 37 field goals during league play and made 30 of 37

Interceptions and fumbles could be another key factor in Wednesday's game as the Grey Cup berth in the last four

The Roughriders have intercepted 12 passes this season from the Stampeders, including three for 105 yards in Satur day's contest, while Calgary claims three interceptions.

There were no fumbles in the first playoff game but during the season Saskatchewan recovgary picked up three of five. Calgary coach Jim Duncan said the injury situation looked brighter for the Stampeders, adding that middle linebacker Wayne Harris, who missed the first game with a sore knee, would likely return to action.

For Saskatchewan, flanker Gord Barwell, hit in the second quarter Saturday by defensive end John Helton of Calgary, was in hospital Monday for examination of his shoulders. He is not expected to travel to Cal-

If there is a feeling of despair in Calgary today, it is well founded. The football Stampeders played well enough to win on Saturday against Saskatchewan Roughriders, and were unlucky to have lost.

Saskatchewan fans may rise in protest, and if they do they will have a justifiable case for the defence, as well.

For if there was a single margin of superiority that decided the first game of the Western Conference finals, 17-11, it was the Roughrider defence. It stopped the Calgary attack when it had to. Otherwise, the game could have gone to Calgary, and there would have been few dissenters that the better team had won.

As it is, the Stampeders might have a proper right to claim to have been jobbed on one particular occasion, which led to a field goal by the Roughriders. But then it also occurred that the Roughriders may have been the recipients of an unkindly ruling by the officials when it appeared they had successfully thwarted a Calgary thrust.

Because of these instances, and others, it is suggested the officiating truly could be labelled a matter for reasonable dispute, and already has,

in Calgary.

Main case for the Stamsecond-quarter play in which Bob Kosid of the Riders intercepted a Jerry Keeling pass at the Saskatchewan 15yard line. It definitely appeared that Kosid was grounded on the play by the intended pass receiver, Gerry Shaw. But not so ruled the officials. Kosid arose, took a practice step or two, looked kindly at the nearest official, and when he heard no whistle or saw no flag, he took off downfield. Sixty yards later he was stopped by the Stampeders. A few plays later, Saskatchewan's Jack Abendschan kicked a field goal to give the Riders a 6-3 lead.

of being deep in their own territory. However, earlier there was cause for anguish from the Roughriders. Calgary's Herm Harrison had taken a long pass from Keeling deep in the Roughrider zone, but when hit had dropped the ball. The ball bounced into a Roughrider's hands and he immediately started upfield. But the play enough. It called for quarterback Ron Lancaster to dump a screen pass to George Reed and the big Roughrider fullback, aided by some fine blocking, was to ramble 71 yards before he ran out of run. A few moments later, Bobby Thompson sped into the end zone for that final 17-11 Roughrider margin, and Calgary's light began to dim noticeably in the late afternoon snowfall.

Because then it was that the Stamps were beset by another foe, the clock, which was showing Saskatchewan tendencies.

Realizing they must do something quickly, the Stampeders were equal to the challenge, and in two minutes went from their own 17-yard line to the Saskatchewan 35. The pressure was on, to be sure, but the Roughriders responded in kind with Kosid, author of the first thievery of note, wrestling the ball away from Shaw, again, in the end zone, to bring final failure to the Stamps. In retrospect, and in view of the series resuming in Calgary Wednesday evening, it should be borne in mind that generally speaking Keeling had his moments of picking the Rider defence apart on Saturday. He passed for a magnificent total of 408. yards which prompted the comment from coach Eagle Keys of the Roughriders that he doubted if many quarterbacks could throw better. However, in tribute to the Roughriders, whom their detractors might say were blessed with an inordinate amount of good fortune in the last one, it must also be said they did their job well when it goal which at that time put the Stampeders ahead, 3-0. The Stampeders can also look back on what might be termed "dirty breaks" as a factor in the loss. For it was in the second quarter as well that they were penalized four times for 48 yards in what has been misnamed a Saskat-chewan drive. This assisted the Riders no end and Abendschan was to kick another field goal to prove it, and that was to put Saskatchewan had to be done. And this is a mark of a winner.

As for the officials, the game proved they were not infallible, which is human.

And although the result suggested that it was more a stroke or rotten luck that Calgary lost, than their fault, it also suggested that a chance, once lost, is seldom offered again.

CAMPBELL WILL PROBE STICK-SWINGING MELEE

WINNIPEG (CP) - President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League says he will go to St. Louis tonight to investigate a stick-swinging incident in which the Blues' Gary Sabourin was hit on the head Saturday night.

The incident took place during a St. Louis Montreal Canadiens game in St. Louis. Montreal's John Ferguson was given a match penalty and two majors as a result of a melee which involved other players.

Campbell said he will meet with Sabourin and any other person who can shed some light on what happened, as well as going over game films.

Woman Killed by Crash; Priest Seriously Hurt

A well-known Roman Catholic priest in Victoria is in poor condition today following a traffic accident which killed his sister and injured two others.

Rev. Jan Planeta, 60, of Parksville is in the intensive care unit of Royal Jubilee Hospital with multiple injuries.

He was the driver of a panel van which went out of control at the Nanoose-E and N Railway overpass Monday morning, 13 miles north of Nanaimo, RCMP said.

Goat Prizes Handed Out To 4-H Club

Goat-raising is not without its rewards. Or awards.

Some 80 parents and mem bers of the Saanich 4-H Goat and Fodder Club held their 15th annual achievement night recently to recognize efforts of outstanding members.

Achievement cups for highest aggregate score in judging showmanship, records, public speaking, personal development and goat husbandry were awarded to Diana Andrew, junior; Paul Gurr, intermediate, and Irene Greenwood, senior. Showmanship trophies were won by Floyd McKee, junior, and Paul Gurr. McKee also won top award for goat husbandry and senior award went to Joan Greenwood.

Best in judging were McKee, junior; Patricia McKee, intermediate, and Irene Greenwood, Special Kiwanis trophies were given to Kathryn Logan for junior leadership, Jo-Anne Edgington for demonstrations, and Paul Gurr for topping the

SWIGGING AWAY TO BEAT LAW

SURBITON, England (Reuters) — Gordon Grey was stopped by police who suspected him of drunk driving. He did some quick thinking, brandished his hip flask and started swigging.

Grey, 33, knew a loophole in Britain's drunk-driving laws. He knew he could not be asked for a breath test until 20 minutes after his last drink —so he kept on drinking.

He pleaded guilty in court here Monday to being drunk and disorderly and obstructing police last month. He was fined £26 ($67.60).

But charges of failing to take a breath test were dropped, and he kept his operators' licence. The court was told Grey had learned of the loophole in a newspaper. His defence laywer said: "It would seemthat the law. which was supposed to stop people drinking and driving is now encouraging them.

ROMANCE DENIED

LONDON (AP)-A pretty brunette has denied humors of a romance with the Queen's eldest son and heir, Prince Charles, who was 21 on Friday.

Lady Leonora Grosvenor, 20-year-old daughter of the Duke of Westminster, said the rumors are "completely un-

Corn Flakes Push Porridge Off Scottish Breakfast Scene

NEW YORK (UPI) — Typically American dishes are moving in on the Scots. Porridge for breakfast is giving way to corn flakes and other dry cereals or, in wo rkingmen's families, to bacon and ever bacon and eggs.

"When I was a boy, porridge was commonplace for breakfast at home," says

Stephen McCam of Helensburgh, Scotland. "The proper way to prepare it was to steep (the oatmeal) in cold water overnight, then boil it half an hour, stirring all the while."

McCann, a distiller water

McCann, a distillery executive, talked about Scottish food and beverages in an interview here. He theorized that fashion and convenience of salt herring and 100-pound sack of oatmeal for his meals

McCann said colleges of that period had no residence halls for students and no regular meal service. Each boy had to fend for himself, and the diet sounded pretty

Old. fashioned foods such as porridge, Scotch broth—a rich mutton and vegetable soup, haggis and all sorts of sweet breads still are prepared—but not as regularly as they were 30 years ago, McCann said.

30 years ago, McCann said. Even fish and chips are losing ground to roasted or barbecued chicken with chips which Americans call french fries. But Scots still eat a lot had brought about the changes in breakfast patterns just as these factors have influenced other Scottish eating habits in recent years.

Webster's Diction ary defines haggis as "a pudding esp. popular in Scotland made of the heart, liver, and lungs of a sheep or a calf mineed with suet, onions, oatmeal, and seasonings and boiled in the stomach of the animal."

Asked to describe its flavor, McCann said "it's difficult. People who have to conserve their resources find the means to do so. So much Scottish cooking is based on making the most of what you have.

Heart of ox, boiled, is another inexpensive food."

The attention given these economy dishes and the traditional thriftiness of the Scots sometimes makes one forget that their, nation also bred some of the world's finest

"A lot of our Aberdeen-Angus (cattle) goes to England, but we eat a lot of lamb and venison," said McCann. He added that Scots generally eat their beef as roasts, but "as time goes by and people become more affluent, they buy more steak." Another change wrought by growing affluence; spirits are used more and more in what McCann, a director of Geo. Ballantine and Son, Ltd., Dumbarton, described as a "very Calvinistic and Presbyterian" society.

"There's a much more relaxed attitude now, even among older people. Always a little Scotch whisky finds its way into cooking—it's like the French and wine." he said.

McCann added that his wife,

French and wine." he said.

McCann added that his wife,
Doreen, pours a little Scotch over haggis before serving it, rubs some into the board that salmon is served on, and uses it to flavor fruitcake and Scotch eggs, a traditional main dish.

Here is Mrs. Stephen McCann's recipe for Scotch

Mix together 2 pounds of ground chuck, 1 small onion, chopped, 1 cup of quick cooking oatmeal, ½ cup of chopped fresh parsley, 2 whole eggs, 2 teaspoons of salt, ¼ teaspoon of pepper and ½ cup of Scotch whisky (optional). Blend well, divide into 6 equal portions, flatten each and wrap each sround a shelled, hard-cooked egg, enclosing egg completely. Bake in a greased shallow baking pan in a preheated 350-degree oven 30 to 35 minutes, or until meat is brown and crusty. Heat 1 (10½-ounce) can of condensed cream of mushroom soup with ½ cup of Scotch whisky (optional) and simmer 10 minutes, Spoon hot sauce over eggs and serve with a green vegetable.

(Milk or water can be substituted for the liquor in the meat mixture and sauce, if desired.)

Tonight's Top Television Shows

MOVIE TO WATCH, 8:30, Channel 4, is "The Ballad of Andy Crocker." (1969), The best of this series of 90-minute movies so far. Lee Majors does a very good job as Andy Crocker, a Vietnam war hero who comes home to find nothing but disappointment and despair. Andy is one of those quiet, nice guys, and you'll feel for him as he discovers his sweetheart, played by sexy Joey Heatherton, has married another guy and that his motorcycle repair business has been run to the ground by his lazy partner (Jimmy Dean). Circumstances defeat our hero and the final scene of the drama is jolting.

ALL THREE U.S. NETWORKS WILL PROVIDE LIVE COVERAGE OF THE LUNAR LANDING ON THE MOON'S "OCEANS OF STORMS." THE TOUCHDOWN IS SCHEDULED FOR APPROXIMATELY 10:57 P.M. WITH THE FIRST OF TWO MOONWALKS SCHEDULED TO BEGIN ABOUT FOUR HOURS LATER REGULAR PROGRAMS WILL BE PRE-EMPTED.

NET FESTIVAL, 9:00, Channel 9. Yale University provides the setting for this behind-the-scenes glimpse of theatre in the making. Spotlighted: "Trio for the Living," a modern-day morality play designed to illustrate the theme of violence, love, sacrifice and redemption via familiar childern's games and LANCER, 7:30, Channel 7. Better entry than we've seen in recent weeks. Pernell Roberts and Joanne Linville add some lustre to the drama about Jelly (Paul Brinegar) who requires surgery from an unlicensed doctor. Roberts brings intensity to the part of the doctor who does his job and is about to return to jail according to a deal made by patriarch Murdoch, who won't go back on his word. Miss Linville spaces her TV roles carefully, and is allowed a few histrionics in this melodrama.

"THE WOLF MEN." 7:30, Channel 5. If you've been wondering about the fate of wolves in the balance of nature, you'll be fascinated by this extremely well-done documentary. In the first part, the legends surrounding wolves which have made them so feared by man, is given cursory examination. We then spend time with scientists dedicated to studying the habits of these intelligent creatures before man's fear might possibly make them extinct. Even ardent hunters may be antagonized by a sequence showing "brave" sportsmen shooting wolves from the safety of an airplane. An exciting moment — a filmmaker's dream — occurs when a scientist is attacked by a wolf and lives to narrate the experience on the show.

"CHINA AND RUSSIA - WAR OR PEACE?" 10:00. Channel 7. Two extremely well informed CBS correspondents who have covered the China and Russian scene extensively, the brothers Bernard and Marvin Kalb, lead this report on the Sino-Soviet conflict tonight. The questions which they and the China and Soviet experts they interview will try to analyse and answer, include the extent of the conflict, the possibility that war may result between the two countries, and what should or could be the American action or reaction to the dispute. Among those the Kalb brothers interview are Secretary of State William P. Rogers. Canadian journalist Colin McCulloch, just back from an 18-month stint in China; Father Ladany, editor of "China News" a weekly analysis, and Professor Marshall Shulman. of Columbia.

TAKE ME ALONG insists Elizabeth (Mary Tyler Moore) to husband, Richard Stuart (Louis Jourdan in "Run a Crooked Mile", 1969 thriller, at 9, Channels 2 and 6. Stuart is off to find dangerous gold manipulators who have threatened his life.

MAN AT THE CENTRE, 10:30, Channels 2, 6. Female sexual identity is traced from early training and sex play through sex education and first experiences. Joining in are author-anthropologist Margaret Mead, child specialist E. S. Gendel, and Clair Kirkland-Casgrain, MLA, lawyer and mother of a teen-age

Oak Bay Finance Group Ponders Library Request

Oak Bay council's finance committee will consider a request of the Greater Victoria Library Board for an efficiency urvey to be made of public library services.

At Monday's council meeting, board chairman Ald. Frances Elford said that six firms had given tenders for the survey which would "take between eight to 15 weeks" and end in late February.

Ald. Elford estimated the survey would cost $15,000. Oak Bay's share of this amount would be 12 per cent.

Ltd.'s request for easement of the 150-per-cent parking re-quirement was referred to the coning and planning committee or further study.

The decision was made after Ald. Walter Dodsworth said further development of Oak Bay Ave. should be halted until the organizers of the 1967 Oak Bay Plan had an opportunity to study proposals for that area and make their recommenda-

First, second and third readings were held on a bylaw which will see Oak Bay voters voting Dec. 6 on whether to have public sports and enter-tainment on Sundays after 1:30 p.m. To pass, the bylaw needs a three-fifths majority.

$3,090 NEEDED

Council agreed to approach the Captial Improvement Dis-trict Commission for a further $3.090 needed to complete a landscaping strip on Cedar Hill Cross Road, Municipal engineer Geoff White outlined plans that would see scarlet oaks being planted 40 feet apart and the current number of rhododendron bushes hinned. Of these, 150 would be given to the University of Victoria for planting in adjacent areas, and another 150 would be planted at the Oak Bay Marina park and in the Uplands area.

the Ss. Beaver Kiwanis third annual No Ball Ball. They're all paying their $10 and aren't looking forward seeing anyone there.

The money won't be spent to rent a hall, hire a band, spread a buffet and buy liquor.

Instead, it will go into the Kiwanis club's trust account to help finance: Lake Cowichan handicapped children's camp, support of a foster child, assitance to the Unitarian Service Committee, shipments of textbooks to underdeveloped countries, sports sponsorship, the proposed Victoria hostel for girls and to conduct Kiwanis International's operation drug alert in Greater Victoria.

All the people who pay their money and don't go will get their names in the social pages, and income tax deductible receipts will be issued.

The No Ball Ball won't be on November 31.

Militant Group Asks $20,000 'Peace' Money

WASHINGTON (WP) - Vietnam Moratorium leaders said Monday that the Weathermen, a militant radical group, asked for a donation of $20,000 in exchange for a promise to refrain from violent behavior during the weekend peace protest.

Stephen Cohen, six mora-torium leaders who were present at the meeting here Friday, described the Weathermen offer as "shakedown."

was corroborated by other members of the moratorium

"They came in and said they wanted $20,000," said Cohen. "They tried to shake us down. They wanted protec-tion money. We told them to get lost."

Weatherman leader William Ayers acknowledged that he and several associates asked the moratorium for help in meeting legal expenses growing out of disturbances in Chicago. But Ayers asserted that no threats were made or implied.

The Weathermen, a faction of SDS which preaches violent revolution, led destructive demonstrations in Chicago at the opening of the Chicago Eight trial and have piled up legal expenses in excess of $50,000.

"They did not say we have come here to blackmail you," Cohen said, "but it was clear that what they were saying to us was that if you give us $20,000 we will not commit acts of violence."

Cohen says that the Weathermen put their propo-sition this way: "We've come to ask you for money for legal defence. After we leave here, we're going to be deciding whether to commit acts of violence. Our decision will be affected if we know there is help forthcoming from you."

Ayers said he told the moratorium leaders that they should contribute to his group "because we are all that stands between the justice department and the torium."

Child Suspected In House Fire

Saanich firemen said today they suspect a child playing with matches was responsible for a house fire on San Rafael Crescent Monday.

DANCING MEANS MOVEMENT IN SAN FRANCISCO

Topless Vs. Belly, Cultural War?

EDMONTON (CP) - Sam T. Jack's was a Chicago night spot in 1892, when men flocked in to see a "hootchy-kootchy" dancer called Little Egypt.

A year later at the World's Columbian Exposition in that city, the rest of the world heard about Little Egypt when she introduced bellydancing to North America. * * *

Today, much of the "stripper" atmosphere surrounding this hypnotically exciting dance is gone. Instead, it's considered an art form, a folk dance. For Sylvia Ashton, it's both a job and a way of life.

Under the name Asmara, meaning "the dark one," she has been a hit at an Edmonton nightclub, and says she is one of a small group of North American dancers who is trying to remove the buresque reputation from her dance

"The dance is very ancient and it's changed a lot from what was just a folk dance to begin with ... so it can be used as a dance in cabarets, she explains.

"One story is that it was They performed it for other

"I don't know if it's true, but it's plausible."

Asmara, who has a BA in English literature from a small college in Wisconsin, now dances primarily at the Casbah in San Francisco, a major centre-if there is such a thing-for authentic bellydancing.

"In the Middle East, they've become more West-ern. They're wearing cos-tumes like gold heels and hairdos up to here.

"We're trained to be authentic, even to where we'll wear tattoos on our foreheads and dance in bare feet."

She first saw belly-dancing while visiting Egypt and Morocco in 1967 and was able to try it in the privacy of

"It's the dance," she says, with the emphasis on "the." . . . Just like the waltz in Austria and the bolero from

Although parts of the dance feature rhythmic movements of the stomach muscles and hips, much of the dance is reminiscent of Spain's graceful seguidilla.

Instead of castanets, Asmara sometimes uses zils. fingertip cymbals, match her movements which alternate between seductively slow and frantic haste. One part of her routine is done on her knees. Her costume too fells a story.

It consists mainly of a halter, wide belt and harem pants. The halter and belt are studded with small gold or brass coins. They're Egyptian coins and the story's something like

'Hideous' Singing Prompted Outburst

LONDON (CP) - Now it can be told. Prince Philip was furious when he saw reporters at what he thought was an off-the-record luncheon last week. The reason?

He had unburdened his heart and sharply criticized Welsh pop singer Tom Jones, one of the world's highest-paid performers.

Philip's remarks - that he considers the Welshman's singing "hideous" — were reported in Britain's newspapers which also carried Jones's response palace spokesman said later Philip had written Jones a letter of apology.

Philip is entitled to his opinion, said Jones. But when the one-time Welsh miner sings at royal variety per-

Folkdancing enthusiasts have begun meeting once weekly at the University of Victoria, and they're looking

"But what makes them go on week after week, year after year, has always been criticism of their greatness. The answer is, I think, people simply love these performers as much as they do a member of the family. They have become a way of life.

SULLIVAN MYSTIFYING

Ed Sullivan has mystified the television world for 22 years. He can't sing, he can't dance, he even has trouble introducing those who can.
His show looks like a last attempt to save vaudeville, with its dog acts, magicians, tumblers and jugglers. Sulli-van seems to have only one talent, but that is all he has needed. He has the ability to recognize talent in others and anticipate public tastes.

Sullivan has launched more new stars than any Hollywood mogul in his heyday. Among them: The Beatles, Elvis Presley, Barbra Streisand, Jack Paar, Jerry Lewis, Dean Martin, Carol Burnett, Harry Belafonte and Jackie Gleason

Since then Skelton's slapstick comedy has become a weekly staple on CBS for many millions. His broad characterizations of politicians, bums and henpecked husbands are unequalled. His pantomimes are classics.

"To the moon, Alice! To the moon!" Jackie Gleason's blustery outrage is predictable and always funny. Since 1952 he has been CBS's Saturday night anchor, unmovable because of his talent and his girth. His Falstaffian delight in food and drink have intrigued fans as much as Ralph Kramden the bus driver or Reggie Val Gleason the play-boy. Gleason is trimmer this year by some 60 pounds.

Despite ABC's anxious striving for the young audience, Lawrence Welk's Champagne Music will remain a Saturday night fixture as long as he is able to say, "Anna one, anna two." People who want to remember times with Strike Up the Band and Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree and other periodic pieces know where to find it.

The next decade quite possibly could see the end of this hardy breed. Gleason, Skelton and Miss Ball are in their late 50s; Hope, Welk and Sullivan are in their late 60s.

HOME GARDEN

Clay Soil Easily Workable Now

By HILDA BEASTALL

As the days become chilly and perhaps showery, we are inclined to look for excuses not to do outside work. Instead, we homemakers who double as gardeners use the weather as an excuse for making Christmas cakes and puddings. All most desirable and appreci-ated in their season, but those outside garden jobs need doing too.

To me, a surprise that never becomes common place is the lovely workable condition of even a clay soil in November. The early fall rains have not caused any stickiness, only a good friable texture, and digging is much easier now than in early spring when we are so impatient at being delayed by heavy winter-wet soil.

By keeping a section of the vegetable Hilda garden in triable condition whenever it is possible to stir the surface, that portion is ready for seed sowing much earlier in

Only the depth of a small spade need be turned, just enough to bury the healthy crop of vetch and chickweed now covering the surface. Both are good nitrogenous fertilizers

In rows where root crops and tomatoes are to go next year, a shallow trench is taken out, crumpled newspapers about six inches deep placed in the bottom, and the green-covered soil put upside down on top.

There is no need to break down the surface at the moment, Leaving it rough and lumpy has many points in its favor. Breaking down with a hoe or pronged cultivator will be done on fine days in December, and later still, a layer of seaforest bark and kelp will be cultivated into the top few

Throughout the winter, the top inch or so will be worked over because the heavy coastal rains tend to pack the surface, exclude air, and separate the humus particles from soil particles.

The more humus material there is in the soil for next year's growing season, the easier it will be to have the necessary moisture supply readily available to the roots of the plants being grown.

While we are enjouing the late tall crops from this year's garden, we have plenty of enthusiasm and plans for getting next year's garden started, especially while the soil is in such a delightful condition for working.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Great Career In Rails, Time

By BOB BOWMAN

Sandford Fleming was one of the many Scotsmen who came to Cariada as young men and earned places for themselves in history.

Fleming was only 18 years old when he arrived and his spectacular career began almost immediately. He was in Montreal in 1849 when an English-speaking m o b , protesting the Rebellion Losses Bill, burned down the Parliament Buildings.

Fleming rushed in and rescued a portrait of Queen Victoria.

Two years later he designed the first Canadian stamp, the three-penny "Beaver," now a collector's item.

After studying engineering and surveying at the University of Toronto, Fleming became chief engineer of the Ontario, Simcoe, and Huron Railway (known as Oats, Straw and Hay Railway) and then surveyed the route of the Intercolonial between Montreal and the Maritimes. When British Columbia joined Canada in 1871 on the poince canada in 1871 on the understanding that a railway would be built to the Pacific, Fleming was given the task of choosing the best route.

He had 800 men working under him when he surveyed the Rockies and chose the Yellowhead Pass route via Edmonton now used by the CNR.

However, there was danger of war with Russia and it was decided to build the railway farther south, so Fleming surveyed the Kicking Horse, Eagle and Roger's Pass route now used by the CPR.

other claim to fame. He invented Standard Time.

There was great confusion in the clocks of various communities in those days. When the Grand Trunk Railway began operating between Montreal and Toronto in 1856. Brockville was 81/2 minutes behind Montreal, Kingston was 12 minutes behind, Belleville 14½ minutes, and Toronto 23 minutes.

Fleming established time zones not only in Canada but all over the world. Standard Time came into effect in Canada on Nov. 18, 1883, and the rest of the world adopted the system the following year after a conference in Washington.

TAKING THE DEEP STEP is Times reporter John Mika today as he enters through the "sail" hatch into the built-in-B.C. submersible Pisces I, demonstrating its capabilities to delegates of the Canadian committee on oceanography meeting here this week. His "pilot" Dick Otter, of International Hydrodynamics, North Vancouver, helps him down. (Times photos by Bill Halkett.)

Strange Place for Camping

The bottom of Esquimalt Harbor is a strange place to go camping.

But we felt quite But we felt quite com-fortable, peering out at the discarded bottles on the wet fround while sitting back on foam-pladed benches to enjoy the flamenco guitar on stereo

The green-tinged light filter-ing from outside into the cosy but uncrowded spaciousness of a family-sized tent all helped to create the atmosphere of campsite relaxation during a wet spell.

There was only one thing missing to complete the pic-ture—not a single one of those annoying but inevitable drips

But I was doubly grateful for that because we were sitting 40 feet below the surface of the naval harbor in Pisces I. making its 434th

SURFACE AIR

"We have surface air inside—one atmosphere—and it stays exactly like this no matter how deep we go," said our pilot, 31-year-old Dick Otter, an electronics engineer and U.S. Coast Guard scubadiver who first soloed in a submersible in Westinghouse's Deepstar research vehicle.

"The sensations are the same even at 3,500 feet," he continued, speaking from experience with Deepstar.

Pisces I will go to a 2,000-foot depth but the North Vancouver firm of International Hydrodynamics which invented and built her for about $250,000 have completed two more capable of 3,500-foot descents and now are con structing another two that will go 6,500 feet down.

The electric motors whirred for a moment, spinning the propellors on either side, and we smoothly revolved around wide circle around the harbon he sensation of motion was slight, heavily damped by our buoyancy. It felt as though we were moving through an oil bath, so smooth that only a glance at the clinometer revealed differences of tilt.

It was cool inside—water t emperature registered 47 degrees—but then it had been just as cool topside. The three-inch quartz porta-holes enabled us to see about

The demonstration dive lasted only about 20 minutes but it was long enough to get slightly bored-such was the complete sense of security and comfort—because the was too murky for ready exploration.

Obviously the great fascination of the submersible lies in those viewing ports and me-chanical arms through which wonders - our pilot, for instance helped discover two pre-viously-unknown species of fish-and perform difficult construction tasks.

It's a perfect environment for scientists and I could better understand R. H. Herlinveaux's amusement when he told me earlier of how superstitious seamen on the icebreaker Labrador religiously shook his hand in farewell each time he made a dive in Pisces below the Arctic ice last year.

Sinister Billion-Dollar International Black Market Alleged

WASHINGTON (AP) $1,000,000,000 international racket in illegal money is centred in the South Vietnamese capital of Saigon and has ties in banking circles throughout the world, a United States Senate subcommittee was told today. Robert R. Parker, a U.S. embassy staff member in Saigon, told the Senate investigations subcommittee the black market in money reaches more than $150,000,000 a year in South

Parker is chairman of the embassy's irregular-practices committee, a group of embassy per-sonnel set up by Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker in an effort to reduce black-market activities.

Heading the international money racket, he said, is a criminal syndicate of Moslem oney changers from southern

It operates through men of several nationalities from wealthy businessmen to gangs of American military deserters he added.

Parker described an elaborate transfer system by which U.S. dollars and South Vietnamese piasters are funnelled into legitimate banking channels. He said that one common payee used by the ring is the "Prysumeen" account at the Manufacturers Hanover Trust in New York City

"In 1968, traffic in this account was in excess of $1,500,000 said Vietnamese, Koreans. Chinese and Americans both soldiers and civilias are involved in the currency-manipulation scheme. "At the top of the black-market hierarchy, in a kind of exec-utive position, are a small group of well-organized Asian-Indians," Parker said. "Most of these are Moslems from the Madras area of south India.

"These men-and their elaborate and obscure family ties constitute a syndicate in the most criminal and sinister sense of the word," Parker said.

Senator Abraham A Ribicoff (Dem. Conn.), chairman of the in vestigations subcommittee, said the currency-manipulation racket is seriously hindering attempts to stabilize the South Vietnamese economy.

Ribicoff said the illegal money market involves U.S. government employees, mem-bers of the U.S. armed forces, government-affiliated contrac-

American businessmen South Vietnamese citizens and nationals of other countries.

He said witnesses will give evidence on specific illegal money dealings through American and Hong Kong banks totalling about $360,000,000 during the last five years.

Large profits are possible in illegal money operations in Vietnam, subcommittee aides said, because of the substantial difference in legal and illega exchange rates

The official exchange rate is 118 South Vietnamese piastres to the U.S. dollar. The black market rate is usually 170 piastres to the dollar and has reached 200, investigators reported. Ribicoff said the currency manipulation racket has done serious damage to the South Vietnamese economy, has made more difficult the fight against inflation and has reduced the effect of American Aid program.

In the uphostered emptiness of a University of Victoria lecture theatre, about 100 of them were being told the world is teetering on the edge of disaster, with maybe only 10 years left before the ecological point of no return.

They were told it was their fault—that they were the reason for disenchanted youth. the generation gap and the campus revolution.

And they were being told in their own terms and their own language by one of their own generation.

Frederick Edell, a Uvic teacher in theatre, was lecturing to the University Extension Association Monday night to culminate a four-lecture series on different aspects of the university.

"I'm supposed to talk about university ferment," he said. But that sounds like a fancy way of making beer. Let's call it the student revolution.

Because if there are any forces for change in the university I think they lie with the students.

"What's wrong with the schools," said Edell, "is that no one is asking the real experts—those with a stake in the educational system.

"A student should be giving this talk. A teacher has been asked to talk about what students are thinking."

He said student unrest is merely a symptom that youth is rejecting the educational, moral and social values that have put the world on the

and biological disaster,

And implicit in that rejection is a rejection of the previous generation that still espouses those values.

"The maturity of adulthood is a myth we hand to the young-because it was handed down to us.

"It was once valid, but no longer. In the knowledge explosion, unless a man spends his whole life in a fight to remain flexible, by the time he grows old he's no longer wise: he's obsolete."

He said a great many students are beginning to understand this myth, and it disturbs them greatly for it means there is no longer anyone who knows better than they how to cope with the problems of the world.

"Unless we start cleaning up the environment immediately our days are numbered," he said.

"Meanwhile, Utah Mining asks permission to drop nine million tons of poisonous effluent per day into our water. Companies start drilling for oil in the Strait of Georgia, in the interior of B.C. there is strip-mining.

'Can you blame our militant young for rebelling against our world and demanding that universities take a role in changing it?"

He warned that an "even more militant generation" graduating from high schools even now, and quoted worldfamous anthropologist Margaret Mead of Columbia University to explain why the campus upheavals will con-

For generations born and living before the Second World War there was always the knowledge that tomorrow would come, he said, and that was a basis of security. But the post-war young have never had that certainty, and they are unsure and afraid.

The provincial government is taking a hard look at B.C. hospitals to see if patients are staying in them too long.

Health Minister Ralph Loff mark announced the study Monday, noting that U.S. hospitals discourage over-long patient stays by "extremely

"That's not the policy in Canada nor do we intend to change that," Mr. Loffmark said. British Columbia has

Daring Landing Tonight

TAKING THE DEEP STEP is Times reporter John Mika today as he enters through the "sail" hatch into the built-in-B.C. submersible Pisces I, demonstrating its capabilities to delegates of the

Strange Place for Camping

The bottom of Esquimalt Harbor is a strange place to go camping.

But we felt quite comfortable, peering out at the discarded bottles on the wet ground while sitting back on foam-padded benches to enjoy the flamenco guitar on stereo

The green-tinged light filter-ing from outside into the cosy but uncrowded spaciousness of a family-sized tent all helped to create the atmosphere of campsite relaxation during a wet spell.

There was only one thing missing to complete the picture-not a single one of those annoying but inevitable drips

But I was doubly grateful for that because we were sitting 40 feet below the surface of the naval harbor in Pisces I, making its 434th

SURFACE AIR

"We have surface air inside—one atmosphere—and it stays exactly like this no matter how deep we go," said our pilot, 31-year-old Dick Otter, an electronics engineer and U.S. Coast Guard scuba diver who first soloed in a submersible in Westinghouse's Deepstar research vehicle.

"The sensations are the same even at 3,500 feet," he continued, speaking from experience with Deepstar.

Pisces I will go to a 2,000-foot depth but the North Vancouver firm of International Hydrodynamics which invented and built her for about $250,000 have completed two more capable of 3,500-foot descents and now are con-structing another two that will go 6,500 feet down.

black-market activities. Heading the international money racket, he said, is a criminal syndicate of Moslemmoney changers from southern India.

It operates through men of several nationalities from wealthy businessmen to gangs of American military deserters he added.

Parker described an elaborate transfer system by which U.S. dollars and South Vietnamese piasters are funnelled into legit imate banking channels. He said that one common payee used by the ring is the "Prysumeen" account at the Manufac turers Hanover Trust in New York City. "In 1968, traffic in this ac count was in excess of $1,500,000

a month," Parker testified. He said Vietnamese, Koreans, Chinese and Americans both soldiers and civilias-are in volved in the currency-manipulation scheme. 'At the top of the black-market hierarchy, in a kind of executive position, are a small group of well-organized Asian-Indians," Parker said. "Most of these are Moslems from the Madras area of south India. "These men-and their elaborate and obscure family ties-constitute a syndicate in the most criminal and sinister sense of the word," Parker said.

Senator Abraham A. Ribicoff (Dem. Conn.), chairman of the in v e stigations subcommittee racket is seriously hindering attempts to stabilize the South Vietnamese economy

Ribicoff said the illegal money market involves U.S. government employees, memgovernment employees, mem-bers of the U.S. armed forces, government-affiliated tors, American businessmen, South Vietnamese citizens and nationals of other countries. He said witnesses will give evidence on specific illegal money dealings through Ameri-can and Hong Kong banks totalling about $360,000,000 during the last five years.

Large profits are possible in illegal money operations in Vietnam, subcommittee aides said, because of the substantial difference in legal and illegal exchange rates.

The official exchange rate is 118 South Vietnamese piastres to the U.S. dollar.

The black market rate is usually 170 piastres to the dollar and has reached 200, investigators reported.

Ribicoff said the currency manipulation racket has done serious damage to the South Victnamese economy, has mademore difficult the fight against inflation and has reduced the ef-fect of American aid program.

"I'm supposed to talk about university ferment," he said. "But that sounds like a fancy way of making beer. Let's call it the student revolution.

"Because if there are any forces for change in the university I think they lie with the students.

"What's wrong with the schools," said Edell, "is that no one is asking the real experts—those with a stake in the educational system.

'A student should be giving this talk. A teacher has been asked to talk about what students are thinking."

He said student unrest is merely a symptom that youth is rejecting the educational, moral and social values that have put the world on the

And implicit in that rejection is a rejection of the previous generation that still espouses those values.

"The maturity of adulthood is a myth we hand to the young—because it was handed down to us.

"It was once valid, but no longer. In the knowledge explosion, unless a man spends his whole life in a fight to remain flexible, by the time he grows old he's no longer wise: he's obsolete."

He said a great many students are beginning to understand this myth, and it disturbs them greatly for it means there is no longer anyone who knows better than they how to cope with the problems of the world.

"Unless we start cleaning up the environment immedidays are ately our danumbered," he said.

"Meanwhile, Utah Mining asks permission to drop nine million tons of poisonous effluent per day into our water. Companies start drill-ing for oil in the Strait of Georgia, in the interior of B.C. there is strip-mining.

"Can you blame our militant young for rebelling against our world and demanding that universities take a role in changing it?'

He warned that an "even more militant generation" is graduating from high schools even now, and quoted worldfamous anthropologist Margaret Mead of Columbia University to explain why the campus upheavais will con-

He said adults tend to repress where intelligent understanding is required.

"Student unrest, if harnessed correctly, could end up in improving schools," Edell

"Prediction: It's not going to get better, it's going to get worse—if you consider student revolution and the reform of universities worse."
